Ernest Hemingway

HEMINGWAY®
FOR THE HOME

Understatement.
Timeless style.
Universal appeal.

Is this a description of the Ernest Hemingway craft? Or McKinley Leather Furniture?

It is both. And therein lies the genius of pairing these two brands to create a line of exciting and exquisite home furnishings.

Our shared values include dedication to excellence, elegant simplicity, and long-lasting quality.

HEMINGWAY® FOR THE HOME is comprised of well-designed pieces, inspired by Hemingway, the man. We captured his classic style, strong character, and bold charm. We embraced his love of international travel and day-to-day life in remote and tropical places, as well as sophisticated cities.

Come take a journey through the Hemingway collection, curated and made by McKinley Leather Furniture.

Whitehead Chair and Ottoman

Generous scale, slight barrel back, and padded English arms accommodate with comfort. Matching ottoman completes the look.

Whitehead Sofa

The selected leather has rugged good looks, much like Hemingway himself, but it's soft, smooth, and comfortable. The special nail head trim design suggests sweeping waves.

Key West Life

Hemingway was a voracious reader, known to be immersed in several books at once. The written word was his passion as well as his life's work.

Both reading and writing require peace and quiet... and comfort. To that end, this group features oversized, lush styling. With the Whitehead pieces, the shape of the back gently hugs and supports the shoulders, while the Pfeiffer piece features a generous pitch and specially designed arms for a relaxed reading position.

"The way to make people trust-worthy is to trust them."

Pfeiffer Reading Chair

Designed for sitting back with a book, this chair is covered with soft woven fabric. Supportive padded arms and base feature a luxurious fine leather.

Paris Runway

Inspired by Hemingway's time in Key West during the 1920s-1930s and his travels to Paris and exotic locales, this group brings together the glamour of couture fashion with the tropical flair of an adventurous outdoor lifestyle. It also incorporates the non-conformist vibe of the Jazz Age and the signature style of the era's Art Deco movement. Details reign supreme — each piece features at least one captivating element that adds charm.

Frederic Sofa

With a distinctive square tufting pattern, this stylish Chesterfield is trimmed with an exotic South American hardwood, Bocote.

Tortuga Swivel Chairs

Exquisite pleating, a la couture, adorn these chic and comfortable chairs.

"Trying to write something of value is a full-time job."

Old Town Reading Chairs

These curved-arm chairs feature a painterly Key West print with a Paris-inspired peek-a-boo back.

Blake Swivel Chair

When one spends hours at a desk, whether writing a classic novel or not, a comfortable, ergonomically correct chair is essential. This handsome leather swivel, designed with lower back support and an easy-to-use height adjuster, exceeds expectations. Striking wood trim adds panache.

Fleming Swivel Chairs

Handsome and scaled for deep seated comfort, this chair's luxurious soft leather repels minor spills.

Key West Gang

It is said that Ernest Hemingway lived life to its fullest in Key West. He wrote in the mornings and then spent many an afternoon at the town taverns, in the company of several deep-sea fishing buddies, affectionately called the "Key West Mob." Each man was given a nickname and legend has it that's how "Papa" became Hemingway's.

Club Havana

Cuba is about 100 miles from Key West and Hemingway visited often, especially for fishing expeditions. Havana was a colorful, vibrant city in the 20s and 30s, a haven for artists, musicians, and writers. Known as the Paris of the Caribbean, it also offered rum during the Prohibition era and boasted a lively nightclub scene. This group portrays the color, vibrancy, and charm shared by both Key West and Cuba's capital city.

Lower Keys Cocktail Ottoman

The perfect perch for a tray of drinks, this piece is wrapped in leather that has been embossed with a weave pattern resembling a fishing basket.

Antigua Settee

Sleek yet cozy Deco-inspired silhouette is complemented by lush, luxe fabric on the seating and an alluring pattern on the back.

Passos Guest Chair

Minimalist, modern styling is adorned with a captivating fine leather, embossed with a brilliant botanical pattern.
