

Pomegranate

the color of it all.

Color is where it all begins for me. It's in the early morning light at home in Kentucky, in the coral sands of Harbour Island, and in the rich dyes of a hand-mixed dye in India. It's the thread that runs through everything I create—capturing soul, the feeling of a place, a moment, or a memory. From the very beginning, color has sparked the story.

I've always been drawn to the way art and nature intersect—to the vibrant patterns found in blooming gardens, breezy coastlines, and the well-worn pages of travel journals. These inspirations take shape through the ancient craft of wood block printing, brought to life by the hands of artisans I've worked with for decades in India. Their skill and spirit turn each design into something truly special—layered with meaning and made to last.

These pieces are designed to live with you—to brighten everyday breakfasts and elevate holiday tables, to bring beauty to spontaneous gatherings and thoughtful hosting alike. They're meant to be used, loved, passed down, and remembered. From inspiration to artistry to the moments that matter most—we love the color of it all.

Made by Hand. Made for You.

All of our finished products are designed by our founder Angela Beck and inspired by her life and world travels.

The process starts with Angela's hand drawn sketches, which are then brought to life in India through the ancient art of hand block printing in vibrant colors on 100% cotton.

Our Social Presence

Through every piece of content we share—from beautifully styled tablescapes to behind-the-scenes glimpses of life on the farm or travels abroad—we invite our audience into a story that's as much about connection as it is about design. Our storytelling is rooted in a deep appreciation for craftsmanship, tradition, and the joy of gathering. Whether it's a video of Angela setting a table with her family or a journal entry highlighting the artisans who bring our collections to life, we use our platforms to create a sense of warmth, authenticity, and belonging that resonates far beyond the products themselves.
