COMPANY INFORMATION

Linsey Gray is a fine artist whose creative practice centers on respite, reflection, and finding peace amid uncertainty. Drawing inspiration from nature's often overlooked moments—dense fog, tangled branches, overgrown trail banks—her art invites quiet contemplation and mindfulness.

Working in harmony with natural wood grain, Linsey applies soft pastels and charcoal directly to unfinished birch plywood, fully embracing the organic medium. Her process is deeply therapeutic and deliberately open to imperfection and chance. She transforms hand-collected twigs into charcoal, finishes each artwork with hand-applied cold wax, and crafts every frame from locally sourced hardwoods—a hands-on approach that mirrors the rhythms of the natural world and cultivates an acceptance of the unexpected.

Based in Asheville, North Carolina, within the River Arts District, Linsey creates original pieces spanning scales ideal for intimate residential nooks and bedrooms to grand, expansive commercial lobbies. This versatile scope enables interior designers to seamlessly curate both grounding focal points and complementary accent pieces from one artist. Commissions tailored to specific spatial requirements are welcomed. Designers can explore trade terms, discuss project timelines, or view current inventory during market at Cohab.Space or through her website's inquiry portal.
