Axiom is not just a table, but a statement of stability and aesthetic rigor. Its name refers to a truth that needs no proof: a sense of purity reflected in an impeccable and highly functional form.

A sculptural X, born from the meeting of two folded and precision-welded metal sheets, forms the base: a strong graphic statement that evokes the perfect balance between strength and lightness. The central base, composed of two curved metal elements that interpenetrate, generates a dynamic and continuous form, creating a sculptural architecture with a strong visual impact. The fluid lines of the base dialogue with the transparency of glass and with the material richness of ceramic or wood, always maintaining a harmonious and essential aesthetic. The design features a double tabletop structure, developed to optimize the different materials: one version with dedicated aesthetic runners for clear glass tops, and one with a boxed structure for standard ceramic tops. Available in both fixed and extendable versions, the tabletops interpret shaped forms and clean surfaces, leaving space for the purity of the design. Completing the project, integrating adjustable feet beneath the bases, ensuring stability and proper support even on uneven surfaces. Axiom is an iconic and contemporary table, designed for those seeking a statement piece that remains balanced, capable of enhancing modern living and dining spaces.
